Current Comment

"Hate Stanford" is the theme phrase of an editorial appearing in the Daily Californian, official chronicle of the University of California. In order that our readers may appreciate subsequent comment on the "editorial" we herewith reprint the ill-advised words of the student editor:

HATE STANFORD

Stanford is likely to wake up on a different campus this morning. The clever boys who stole the axe may have returned to paint the town red, but they may find the place painted blue and gold before the night is over.

Hate Stanford! Catch the euphony of that sentence, notice its essential accuracy! Hate Stanford! Repeat it over and over in your mind; formulate it with your lips! HATE STANFORD!

We have always had a notion as to the sort of people that inhabit the God-forsaken campus 40 miles south, and our notion is now confirmed. The rally committee, though it may have erred in allowing the armored car to be too far in advance of the scanty freshman guard, cannot be blamed for being routed by the most carefully planned racketeer robbery in local history. Stanford, despairing of an honest burglary, imported Chicago methods. Tear bombs may be fair play at Stanford—but then, that is Stanford. HATE STANFORD!

We are nurturing one special animosity, and that is for Stanford. And we won't be very sorry if the Stanford boys find their quad a deserted ruin this morning, and the campus returned to the desert from which it came.

If Stanford gets satisfaction out of this, O. K. So do we out of HATING STANFORD!

What do you think of that as an example of good, clean sportsmanship? We do not believe that the sentiments therein expressed are the sentiments of the entire university. We believ that the majority of Golden Bear students are sporting enough to realize that Stanford was entirely justified in using any method to retrieve the long lost axe— barring murder, of course.

When the fiery young writer of the still more fiery editorial decried the "Chicago racketeer method" used in getting back the property of the Stanford student body, he evidently lost sight of the "New York Bowery methods" used by Berkeley students 31 years ago when they wrested the famous axe from its rightful possessors.

It is even possible that, had tear bombs been in general use in the gay ninties, California students would have used them in the small riot that marked the one and only theft of the Stanford axe.

Aside from all the recriminations—and back to the theme song, "Hate Stanford," can you picture thousands of supposedly intelligent men and women, students at one of the world's greatest institutions of higher learning, going about their daily rounds harboring a grouch as colossal as that urged by the California editor?

The writer is a graduate of neither college. In fact, we are not numbered among those fortunate men who attended a university—any university—so our opinion cannot be construed as being biased when we say that we rather like the spirit of the Cardinal handful as compared to the multitude of Golden Bears.

The fact that so bitter a spirit is allowed to exist between any two universities says little for higher education, the paramount requisite of which is to teach men and women to think. Thinking people could not for long see sense in taking to their bosoms bitter hatred of a rival institution—especially when the first pangs originate with a drubbing 31 years overdue.

Every lover of intercollegiate sports is hoping that relations between these two great universities do not become strained—and there is really little possibility of any permanent break arising from the events surrounding and including Stanford's recovery of the historic axe. The only danger lies in the careless pens of those ambitious students of journalism who would perfect their technique at the expense of the entire university. Let university students think it it over.

That's all.

CTY. FEDERATION WILL MEET HERE FRIDAY, APRIL 25

Several matters of business were brought before the Country Woman's club at its meeting Monday. The president, Mrs. D. H. Cramer, announced the meeting of the County Federation here Friday, April 25, and urged a full attendance of members. Reservations for luncheon which will be served at the Methodist church by the Young Women's Service club should be made not later than the next club meeting, April 21.

The purchase of three dozen folding chairs for use in the community room for large gatherings was authorized. The purchase of a flower stand and bowl was also authorized.

Mrs. H. C. Smith reported briefly the County Federation meeting held in San Jose March 28.

Mrs. Freeman Howes, one of the latest members, sang very pleasingly two songs, "My Lady's Bower" and "Cornish May Song," responding to an encore with "A Meadow Scandal."

The program committee, Mrs. H. P. Bean, Mrs. J. D. Blaine and Mrs. A. W. Wellington, had secured M. H. Antonacci of the county engineer's office to speak on the topic of the afternoon, "Engineering Achievements of the United States."

Mr. Antonacci developed his subject in a very interesting manner, considering it briefly under six general projects with which the engineering mind of today is interested. 1. Bridges, especially suspension. 2. Tubes and tunnels. 3. Skyscrapers. 4. Water supply. 5. Regional planning. 6. Human engineering.

He illustrated the first with a description of the Ambassador bridge and the Hudson river bridge; the second with the tubes under the Hudson and the new double tubes to handle several lines of traffic soon to be constructed; third the Shannon and Chrysler buildings in New York of 50 and 70 stories respectively; fourth, the Metropolitan water district of southern California, including Los Angeles and several other cities, and fifth, the greatest study of regional planning in the world which includes New York city and part of the surrounding cities and country lying in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, a territory including 426 cities; and under the sixth he explained the aim of the newer type of instructors in universities, who are training engineering students to recognize the human element in their work and not to expect the presentation of cold mathematical facts to be all that is needed to win the public to approval of their projects.

The concluding number on the program was a piano solo, "Country Gardens" by Percy Grainger, which was very well played by Jeanette Wellington.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Grizzle were week-end visitors in San Francisco.

Grange Will Present Famous Entertainer

John Frederick Mason, reader, impersonator and humorist will be presented by the Orchard City Grange in an evening of entertainment Friday, April 11, starting at 8 o'clock at the high shcool annex.

Mr. Mason will impersonate many characters, including the English dude, the Italian workman, the German father, the Italian lover, the Scotch dominie, the Chinese gambler and the Swedish immigrant. He will impersonate a little girl crying over her dead kitten, a small boy tormenting his big sister, and he will, according to advance notices, do them so well that they seem real.

JAMES ROLPH, JR. ASPIRES TO GOVERNORSHIP OF STATE

The formal declaration of James Rolph, Jr. of his intention to run for the office of governor of California has been received at this office it is addressed:

To the People of the State of California:

I have decided to become a candidate for the Republican nomination for the office of governor of California. Encouragement from citizens of every county in the state justifies this decision and is an expression of confidence which gives me substantial hope of success.

This is my native state. To be its governor is the porper aspiration of any man who has had public experience like mine.

Almost 20 years ago I was urged to yield my private interests to become mayor of San Francisco. Since then I have been steadily honored with the trust of public interests of that city. San Francisco arose from her ruins and has continued a program of reconstruction and magnificent public improvement. This extensive program has been carried on without the slightest suggestion of graft or breath of scandal, while San Francisco has been enjoying the lowest tax rate of any metropolis in the United States. What has been accomplished for San Francisco I will try, if elected, to accomplish in a greater and larger sense for the entire state of California.

During these many years I

BABY CONTEST IS SLATED AS PART OF ROSE FESTIVAL

Babies of Santa Clara county, twins, singles—boys and girls, ages between one day and three years, are invited to enter the baby parade and health contest of the Santa Clara County Fiesta de las Rosas, which will be held in San Jose on the morning of Friday, May 16.

This event, a miniature fiesta parade that the babies put on while the grown-ups watch, proved one of the most popular features on the fiesta program last year. There were only 40 baby participants then, but the baby parade committee, headed by Mrs. Annie Farnsworth of San Jose expects to have at least 100 babies in the parade this year.

Six prizes are to be awarded under classification as follows: Best decorated carriage with girl baby; best decorated carriage with boy baby; best decorated cart with girl baby; best decorated cart with boy baby, best decorated vehicle with girl baby; best decorated vehicle with boy baby.

In the health contest eight prizes are to be awarded as follows: For babies up to one and one-half years of age—the best girl, best boy, next best girl, next best boy. For babies one and one-half to three years of age—best girl, best boy, next best girl and next best boy.

The carriage, cart or vehicle entered in the parade must be decorated in natural flowers and must be escorted by the mother, father or an adult member of the immediate family, the committee has ruled. Only babies participating in the parade will be eligible for the health contest.

Entry blanks must be filled out in the Fiesta de las Rosas headquarters office, 36 North First street, San Jose, not later than Tuesday, May 13. The telephone number is Columbia 3390.

Miss Cynthia Morris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Morris of Hamilton avenue, was married Saturday to Moris Baffer of San Francisco. The wedding took place at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. George Stocksleth.

Mrs. B. M. Shepherd of Galt was visiting over the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Page.

C. H. S. ALUMNI TO STAGE DINNER AT ST. CLAIRE MAY 17

The second annual C. U. H. S. alumni reunion will be held during the Fiesta de las Rosas, May 17 at 8:30 p. m.

This year the celebration will take the form of a dinner dance in the main dining room of the Hotel St. Claire. All arrangements have a good start towards completion and it looks like everyone is in for a good time.

A council meeting will be held at the high school April 9 at 7:30 o'clock.

GROWERS TO CLOSE POOL ON APRIL 15

After April 15 it will be impossible for growers of prunes and apricots to affiliate themselves with the California Prune and Apricot Growers' association.

There are 5,000 names on the association register and they represent about 60,000 acres of prune orchards. It is reported that of the 5,000 signed up, 1,780 of the names are from this county. There is also a brief period in which growers may withdraw from the association if they so desire.

Any grower wishing to join the ranks of the organization may make application for membership at Plant No. 1 in Campbell.

Birthday Dinner Party For "Dean" Whitman

The birthday of C. H. Whitman was the incentive of a dinner party Sunday at the Whitman home on Central avenue. A yellow, orange and green color scheme was used in decorating the table at which were seated the hosts and the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. Eugene O'Connell of Oakland, Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Critchlow of San Jose, and Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Parsons.

ODD FELLOWS TO MEET THURS. EVE

Thursday evening, April 11, at the regular meeting of the Morning Light lodge, I. O. O. F., matters of importance to delegates to the grand lodge will be taken up.

Noble Grand F. E. Getchell asks that all members of the lodge be present if possible.

ORCHESTRA FROM I. O. O. F. ORPHANAGE PLAYED HERE

The 32-piece orchestra from the I. O. O. F. orphanage at Gilroy was the main feature at the program put on jointly by Odd Fellows and Rebekahs at the grammar school auditorium Friday evening, April 4. The music by this orchestra was of excellent quality and was received with enthusiasm by the audience.

Miss Virginia McCully was second on the program and entertained the assemblage with a song and dance. Stephen Merrill, with his father, Dr. W. I. Merrill as accompanist, received quite a ovation for his vocal solo. Duncan Reynard of Palo Alto played a banjo solo and Anna Schulte recited. Several songs by Josephine LaBarbara were appreciated and a vocal solo by Shirley McCully and several magic tricks by Louis Shelley concluded this part of the entertainment.

Fred Getchell was show manager.

Addresses on the aims and ideals of the Odd Fellow and Rebekah lodges were delivered by Judge P. T. Gosbey, past grand master of California; Ida May Bruegge, district deputy president of the Rebekahs, and Rev. A. Sterling, past grand master of Missouri.

Refreshments were served to the youngsters of the orchestra at the I. O. O. F. banquet hall at the close of the entertainment.

GREAT PLANS ON FOOT FOR 1930 FIESTA OF ROSES

No San Jose girl may compete for the queenship of the Fiesta de las Rosas May 15, 16 and 17, but all other Santa Clara county cities are invited to enter a candidate, it was decreed by the queen committee at a recent meeting.

The queen will be chosen by the same method as last year, the committee decided, when Emilia Lindeman of Willow Glen was picked by a group of art connoisseurs, among them James Swinnerton, nationally known artist of Palo Alto.

Each of the 11 cities, Santa Clara, Morgan Hill, Gilroy, Sunnyvale, Los Gatos, Saratoga, Willow Glen, Mountain View, Palo Alto, Campbell, Los Altos, will be asked to enter a candidate in the queen contest.

These cities will choose their candidate at a dance or other celebration from among a group of five or six selected by various civic organizations.

The girls chosen will be sent to San Jose to compete in the judging which will be held at the American theater about two weeks before the fiesta.

Fiesta week the queen's coronation will be held at the California theater with the defeated candidates comprising the queen's ladies in waiting. The lucky 11 will be guests of San Jose during the coronation.

Her majesty and court will ride on the title float in the floral parade on the afternoon of May 17 and will also be honor guests at the fandango, the "Madonna of Monterey" pageant to be given in the state college quadrangle, the flower show, and other such events.

"Fandango" Innovation

Fiesta fandango, a giant night celebration, comparable to the Mummers carnival in Nice or the New Orleans Mardi Gras, is a new feature in the Santa Clara County Fiesta de las Rosas.

Figures wearing giant paper mache heads, revelers dressed in all manner of costumes will be a part of the fandango. A dozen blocks in the heart of the city will be roped off for the convenience of the celebrators. These will be lighted and a broadcasting system will blare the best of jazz music through the streets.

Points of Resemblance Quite Easily Explained

Mrs. Elsie Clarkson, settlement worker, was criticizing short skirts. "It's bad enough for the so-called fashionable people to wear them, but for the working girl, usually living in neighborhoods none too safe after dark, it is downright folly. And besides, some of these skirts are really ridiculous. They remind me of a story.

"A young man, meeting a girl in a New York night club, said: 'Didn't I meet you last summer at Palm Beach?'

"'Oh, no; it must have been my sister—she was down there last summer.'

"'In that case, you must be twins.'

Scot Accent Contagious

English purists are aroused over a curious situation which has arisen in some of the market towns of Essex. So many Scottish farmers have settled in this district that slowly but surely the Lowland Scots' accent is taking the place of native English.

"I still don't understand," said Fellowes, shaking his head. "You were a nun anyway?"

"Sorra a nun. Unless ye call me nun that was housekeeper for the Irish Nuns at Lisbon, and that same by token Mother Seraphina that was born Margaret Gilhooley, third daughter to ould Squire Gilhooley av the Reeks, in County Donegal, would have me come wid her when she tuk the veil for a bit av company and blanhanderin by times she wasn't prayin'. But that was before I got me growth or me appeytite, and shure, says she, I'd ate the convent out av its funds if I went on. But was I to blame that the dear God give me a stomach above nuns' fare?"

"So you left the convent for Miss Inglepin's service?"

"That I did and maany's the time I've been down on me two shinbones, thankin' the blessed saints that sint a foine, lovely, young leddy the like av her—"

"But didn't she know you were Irish?" Fellowes interrupted, his suspicions reawakened.

The duenna eyed him shrewdly.

"Not she! 'Twas a Portuguese she wanted. One that knew the way av the counthry, and Mother Seraphina says, says she, me young leddy wouldn't be satisfied wid—"

"Was that honest?"

"And why not?" snapped the attendant. "How was a chit of a girrul to know what was betther for her? And I'll thank ye not to miscall me, that's been a good friend to ye, for all yer black scowls, and murtherin' rages, and the blood ye've spilt on the right hand and the left."

"I'm sorry," Fellowes apologized, genuinely bewildered. "But you mustn't blame me—"

"Arrah, and 'tis nobody else I'll blame, and me young leddy asettin wid the salt tears on her cheeks, all for the way ye mishandled her, wan minite for kissin' and the next for hangin'! Think shame to yerself, sorr, that have spread misery wid yer hate, and won't see love when it comes in yer path, but turn yer back on it, and go off to seek God knows phwat!"

She paused to catch her breath, perhaps to give him an opportunity to answer; but he was speechless, fumbling for comprehension of her words.

"Ah, as shure as me name's Mary McCarthy, that was housekaper to the Irish Nuns, and for hunger sint out to wait on the swatest young leddy alive, 'tis ye are the fool av the world!" The beady, black eyes assumed a sympathy at odds with the spirit of the declaration. "God forgive ye, sorr," she went on softly, "do ye have to be told 'tis just yerself she loves?"

"I'm afraid you don't know what you're talking about," Fellowes protested unsteadily. "Miss Inglepin was very fond of Captain Collishawe. He deserved her affection. That's why I feel so bad over his death."

"Oh, my glory," exclaimed Mary McCarthy. "'Tis a babe in arrms ye are! Ain't ye got the sinse to know she turned down poor Capt'in Collishawe for yerself? That was why she made such a todo over him—and to her credit. A kind, gentle lamb wouldn't do a hurrt to anny man, which is more nor the best av them deserve!"

With a strength none would have suspected she clutched one of Fellowes' elbows and started to propel him back to Front street; but almost immediately she released him.

"Shure ye can run faster nor me that's weighted wid belly fat," she said. "Go on lad! Put the spurs to yer flanks, and make haste to her. There's nothin' the like av tears to wipe clane the sorriest slate. So be aisy—and on yer way."

He obeyed mechanically. The crowd in front of the Inglepin warehouse had increased in size with the arrival of the governor, and made room for him reluctantly until Doak and Eaches recognized him, and abandoned their reminiscing to brandish musket-butts and bayonets and shout importantly:

"Stand aside, good people! Stand aside for Squire Fellowes!"

Cara, mournful and perturbed, sat at her uncle's desk, Joshua on one side of her, Ben on the other. The governor was stamping back and forth in front of the window, while Sopher orated with keen appreciation of the distinction of his audience.

"—and I can but asseverate once again, your excellency, that as the woman passed me I distinctly heard her say—or possibly 'twould be preferable to employ the word mutter—'Ah, 'tis hungry ye'll be this hour tomorrer, Mary McCarthy!'"

"She'll not be, then," asserted Fellowes.

The four men stared at him in a complex of humors, but Cara cried out spiritedly:

"That she shan't be, and I care not who'd persecute her. Besides, 'tis ridiculous, Mr. Sopher. The poor creature has no English."

"Yet we all heard her speak," Governor Tompkins pointed out temperately.

"She speaks English as well as any of us, your excellency," Fellowes interjected; "but there's no great mystery to it. She was in need of employment; she was told Miss Inglepin would accept only a Portuguese; and lest she should lose her place she pretended ignorance of English. She abandoned her ruse because—because she had her mistress' happiness at heart."

He looked straight at Cara, and after a moment of indecision she let her eyes meet his.

"I owe a debt to Mary McCarthy," Fellowes added gently. "She showed me what I was too blind to see."

The answering light that shone in Cara's face drew him forward a step before he could check himself.

"Humph," grunted the governor. "I must get back to Government house. You might come with me.

Here, Rekindled for Him, Was the Subtle Glamor That Had Lured Him From Perenha to Lisbon.

Joshua. We'll see if the prize court has straightened out the Centurion's plunder, eh? You sent in two vessels, Fellowes?"

"Three," Fellowes returned automatically, his eyes never swerving from Cara's.

"Two came in—a fair ratio, eh, Joshua?"

"D—n' fair," Joshua assented. "I'll go with you, Governor."

"Mind if I come, too?" asked Ben.

"Glad to have you," answered Joshua, linking arms with him.

In the doorway his excellency paused, and seized hold of Sopher's shoulder.

"You, too," he commanded.

"But, your excellency, I am on duty! In charge of Captain Fellowes' escort, and—"

"You come along as Fellowes attorney," advised the governor. "He'll not require assistance here or I miss my guess."

The door closed behind the four, and as if the click of the latch had been a signal Cara rose from her chair. Her eyes were brown pools, flecked with star-glint, and it seemed to Fellowes that he was sinking gradually, gratefully, into the infinite mystery of their depths. Here, 'rekindled for him, was the subtle glamor that had lured him from Perenha to Lisbon, and from Lisbon aboard the True Bounty, its embers glowing rosier with every breath he drew. He leaned toward her, and suddenly she was in his arms, her lips lifted frankly to his.

"Forgive me," he whispered.

"Ah, dearest—" her fingers stroked his lacerated back—"I have your stripes to answer for, however innocent I was."

"They're but scars," he protested.

"So they're not scars on your memory," she murmured, and nestled closer.

CHAPTER XVI

Mrs. Rhodes Makes Up Her Mind.

"EASY, Pete! Whoa, thar, Paul!"

Jeff Riggle caught the thong of his whip around the butt, and climbed creakily down from his seat, as the Widow Rhodes emerged from the side door of the General Armstrong into the spring twilight of the inn yard.

"Late as usual," she sniffed. "B'en stopin off ag'in to see that hussy daown to Floyd Jones' hey?"

"Allus believe the wusst of a man, daon't ye?" Jeff countered. "Anyone 'ud be late, carryin' the load I did."

"'Tain't noticeable," she remarked, peering into the coach's empty interior.

"Set 'em off back a piece," affirmed Jeff. "Squire's to home."

Mrs. Rhodes became alert.

"Lion Fellowes? Home? Why, ye footless loon! Keepin' all the news back from a body!"

"Naow, naow, M'randy, ye ain't give me time to flap my jaw, I was all sot to tell ye, and—"

"Go on, lummox! Tell me! Has he got his health? Haow'd he do privateerin'?"

"Done fine. Married."

"Married!" The widow's tone was falsetto. "Aprivateerin? Be ye crazy?"

"Shore, he's married. Thatair Miss inglepin was up to Chater's. Reck'lect?"

"Waall, I vum," exclaimed the widow. "Guess I better git my bonnet, 'n' hustle up to the Manor. They'll be needin' help more'n likely."

"Oh, they got aplenty help," Jeff assured her. "Thatair Portygee woman—only she ain't Portygee, she's Irish, name o' McCarthy, and talks nigh as much as ye do, M'randy—"

"Huh! I'll thank ye not to be couplin' me with an outlandish furriner the shape of a bar'l of salt pork!"

"Shore," drawled Jeff, "but ye kin say this for a fat woman. She ain't so short in her temper."

"Any woman 'ud be short-tempered with a tight-mouthed ninny hadn't more'n hoss talk on his tongue! Git along, do! Who else come with Squire?"

"Nimrod Sopher. The rest o' the Babylon fellers stayed into the city. Spendin' prize money."

"They would," the widow observed grimly. "Anyone else?"

"That mahog'ny-colored feller, Tom, 'n' his niggerman—only he ain't Tom's nigger no more 'cause Squire Fellowes—or mebbe 'twas Miss' Fellowes—it's kinder hard to make out haow they done it—bought him off o' Tom."

Mrs. Rhodes' eye brightened visibly.

"Do tell!" she cried. "Why thatair Tom must have a heap a money, Jeff."

"But money doan't never do a sailor no good," asserted Jeff. "And the best of 'em air uneasy fellers, allus up 'n' away, jest when ye figger ye got 'em tied dawn."

"I'd like to see the man, sailor or no, could git away from me, short o' the Heavenly trump," commented the widow.

"Waall, naow, if 'twore me, thar wouldn't be no need to keep him from gittin' away," propounded Jeff. "I had it on my mind quite a time, M'randy, to talk things over with ye."

"Save yer breath," advised Mrs. Rhodes. "Did ye hear haow much prize money Tom got?"

Jeff's response was unintelligible, and he turned to the task of unharnessing his team; but the widow reached out a lean arm, and grappled him to her.

"None o' that with me, Jeff Riggle," she ordered. "Answer my question."

"Haow'd I knaow? Ask him yerself."

"As if ye didn't worm into every bit o' news along the road," she scoffed. "Haow much?"

After a hopeless wriggle, Jeff answered sullenly:

"They do say squire give Tom all his share o' the prize money."

"Squire's share? Glory be! But haow much?"

"Four-five thousand dollars."

Her arm fell beside her.

"Land's sake! All that money for a nigger-man?"

"Squire 'n' Mis' Fellowes air purty fond o' Cuffee."

"Oh, Cuffee's a good nigger! But—All that for him! I vum! And Tom innercent as a cradle babe!"

Her head sank in reflection.

"I got a ter'ble hunger, M'randy," he said. "Haow 'about a snack to eat?"

She didn't hear him. Her eye was scanning the inn structure with a calculating efficiency.

"Mebbe 'twould be a good scheme to change the name," she murmured.

"Ye jest changed it," objected Jeff.

"I knaow, but the war ain't goin' to last much longer, and folks won't think much o' sojers. 'The Sailor's Rest!' That 'ud be a good one. Kinder appealin', too. Make a man feel to home.

"M'randy, ye ain't fixin' to throw me over?" gulped Jeff. "Ye ain't goin' to go 'n' tangle yerself with this leetle, hairy sailor that won't draw two sober breaths ashore?"

"I'll thank ye to keep a civil tongue in yer head where Tom's consarned," the widow retorted briskly. "And I ain't throwin' ye over—thar ain't nothin' betwixt us to throw, Jeff Riggle. Jest 'cause I've let ye order me 'raound like I was yer wife, which the dear Lord knaows I'd never dream of bein' not while thar was a single other man left able to draw britches onto his legs, ain't no reason why ye should presoom to try to boss 'n' bother me. Git along, naow! Unhitch them hosses, 'n' bed 'em daown. If ye want a bite, thar's a ham in the cold cupboard, 'n' fire for a dish o' tea."

"But whar ye goin', M'randy?" he wailed as she started to sail out of the yard.

"Goin'? Why, of course, I'm goin' to see what I kin do for Squire 'n' Mis' Fellowes."

"Figgerin' to marry Tom right off?" he snarled. "Mebbe he'll have somethin' to say for hisself."

"He's a sensible man, Tom is," she retorted. "And thar's more to a sailor 'n' thar is to a stage driver."

Bitterness welled up in Jeff's heart.

"Yes, and more'n one wife most gen'rally."

"Not if he's married to M'randy Rhodes," the widow returned, undisturbed. "I calc'late to keep a man so busy he won't hanker after sin—which is what I'm goin' to tell Mis' Fellowes. Not that squire ain't a decent young man, but men air men, and all Nimrod Sopher's law learning won't change 'em."

All children are subject to little upsets. They come at unexpected times. They seem twice as serious in the dead of night. But there's one form of comfort on which a mother can always rely; good old Castoria. This pure vegetable preparation can't harm the tiniest infant. Yet mild as it is, it soothes a restless, fretful baby like nothing else. Its quick relief soon sees the youngster comfortable once more, back to sleep. Even an attack of colic, or diarrhea, yields to the soothing influence of Castoria.

Keep Castoria in mind, and keep a bottle in the house—always. Give a few drops to any child whose tongue is coated, or whose breath is bad. Continue with Castoria until the child is grown! Every drugstore has Castoria; the genuine has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper.

Shocking

And now another ideal takes a tumble when M. Plieurpet, one of the well-known Parisian designers, declares:

"The young lady who dresses in neutral tones is frequently catalogued as dowdy, quiet or demure; when more than likely, she is very clever in that she desires to fit into the color scheme of any auto that may come along."

Unfailing Supply

It's easy to entertain guests in the city because you can get plenty of food just by opening a can, and plenty of music just by opening a window.—Life.

Discouraging a Censor

Probation Officer L. J. Kinney of Placer county, California, is through censoring dances to enforce an ordinance passed limiting attendance at public dances to persons more than eighteen years of age after midnight. Kinney says he recently tapped a dancing damsel on the shoulder and asked her if she know about the law. She led him to the dressing room, where two young babes were sleeping on a cot. "Those are my grandchildren," she scornfully informed him.

All the world's a stage, but some don't like play-acting and become hermits.

Three Mothers Agree

When mother is tired, nervous or ill the whole home is upset. For her family's sake, every mother wants to be well and strong. These three women tell how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helps them to care for their families.

Mrs. H. Dolhonde, 6318 York St., New Orleans, Louisiana

"Before my last baby was born, I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I got such good results that I named her Catherine Lydia. I have six older children and five grandchildren, too. I am now taking the Vegetable Compound again because of my age. I eat and sleep better and I do all my housework, and my washing. I will do my best to answer letters."

Mrs. Harold Goodnow 36 Cane St., Fitchburg, Massachusetts

"I cannot praise your medicine enough. After my baby came I was rundown. I had to go to bed often through the day. I took three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I felt like a different woman. If any mother has those tired feelings I advise her to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

Mrs. Lloyd R. Blasing, 115 So. Ohio St., Anaheim, California

"After my baby came I was so nervous and tired that I felt miserable. One day a booklet was left at our door and after reading it I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am now on my fourth bottle and I feel much stronger. It has helped me in every way and I feel sure that other women in rundown condition will pick up if they will only take a few bottles."

Mail Romance

Several months ago Miss Helen Taylor, clerk in the post office in Brunswick, Ga., wrote her name and address on a slip of paper and placed it in a mail bag, not knowing where the bag was going. The bag reached Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and the slip of paper fell into the hands of Charles Ingram, night register clerk. He wrote to Miss Taylor. The two exchanged photographs, and a short time ago he went south. Now Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ingram are back in Cedar Rapids.—Indianapolis News.

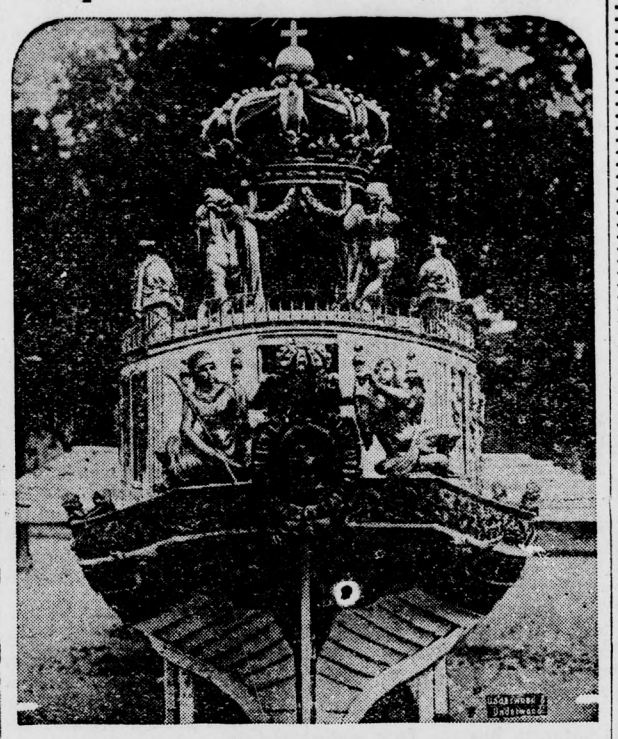
Napoleon's Ancient Barge Found



While cleaning out a storeroom in the old arsenal at Brest, France, government authorities came upon an old barge which proved to be one that had been especially constructed for the use of Napoleon I, and later used by his nephew, Napoleon III. Brest is to France what Hampton Roads is to the United States, so that the barge was evidently used by the Napoleons for the inspection of the fleet when it was in the harbor. The historical craft will be placed on public view after it has been completely restored. The photograph shows a rear view of the barge, with the emperor's crown on top of the cabin and his shield at the stern.

'TREE MAN' KEPT SECRET 25 YEARS

Lives in Suspended Iron Tank, Gets No Mail and Seldom Talks.

Horatio, Ark.—"My past is buried ask no questions!" For a quarter of a century these curt words have been the only reply of "the tree man of Horatio" to all who have sought to penetrate the wall of mystery he has raised about himself. So successful has been the recluse in veiling his past that few persons ever question him now, and in fact only a few residents of this little town know of his existence.

It was a bitter cold night more than 25 years ago, when a few minutes after the night train south had made its brief pause here, a middle aged man walked into the small hotel and asked for a room. "Just call me Fred Brown," he replied in a German accent to questions as to his identity.

The hotel proprietor soon discovered that Brown had placed a secret lock on his door. The eccentricities of the stranger continued to arouse the curiosity of the landlord. He investigated. Finally he discovered a small iron ring at the base of the hall opposite Brown's room. A pull on the ring released the secret lock on the inside of the stranger's door, but the sudden arrival of Brown cut short any exploration by the hotel man, and a few minutes later the mystery man checked out.

Lives in Tree.

A few days later, Brown requisitioned a huge cast-off iron tank along the railroad right-of-way, rolled it about a hundred yards away and "squatted" on land owned by Tom Green of Horatio. There he remains to this day.

Cutting the ends of the old tank and then hinging them as doors, Brown swung the contrivance high up in a large tree. In the tank he established his home, becoming known as the "tree man." A rope ladder furnishes means of reaching the aerial house, and as soon as Brown is perched in his swinging home, the ladder is pulled up. A large piece of tin securely fastened to the trunk of the tree prevents anyone climbing up without arousing the tree dweller. In winter Brown closes the doors of his home, while they are allowed to swing open in warm weather. For many years the tank was the only abode of the recluse, but recently he has built a six-foot square shack without windows, which he occupies on some of the coldest nights. Another shack houses a few chickens and furnishes storage for food supplies which he grows on about an acre of ground that he has fenced in from the owner's estate.

Only one man, O. T. Brinkley, Horatio storekeeper, is on intimate terms with Brown, and he has never been able to delve into the recluse's past. Brown has worked on Brinkley's farm at times for the last 20 years, and makes all his purchases from his employer's store.

More than 20 years ago Brown purchased a suitcase from Brinkley and returned the next day with it packed and asked Brinkley to allow him to leave it in the store. The suitcase remains in the store today. On rare occasions Brown comes into the store, opens the suitcase, takes or leaves some article, and then departs. No other person has ever seen the contents, says Brinkley.

Sells Vegetables.

The recluse grows a small amount of vegetables on his plot of ground, which he sells through the Brinkley store. He comes into town about once a week, but always after dark. From his garden and a few chickens he derives most of his necessities.

Last summer he complained that some one was stealing his chickens, and in order to thwart further raids on his fowls he nailed a long pole upright on the gate of his chicken yard. On the top of the pole he fastened a white flag and, while working in fields nearby, he kept his eye on the white cloth. Any movement of the cloth denotes the opening of the gate. Theft of his chickens ceased, he said.

Several weeks ago Brown was summoned to De Queen to court as a witness in a minor case which originated in the vicinity of his place. He ignored the court order and a deputy sheriff was sent for him. When brought into the court room, Brown vehemently expressed his opinion of all courts in general and the Sevier county tribunal in particular. The judge sentenced him to jail for contempt, but he was allowed to depart after a few days. While Brown was in jail Sheriff Roy Hooper made intensive inquiries in the North and East, but could obtain no information on the recluse.

So far as is known, Brown has never received any mail through the post office here, and he never reads, although he apparently has a good education. He now appears to be about sixty years old and is in the best of health.

Mentions "Mounties."

"One day while I was taking to him he mentioned having been with the mounted police in Canada, but when I tried to continue the trend of the conversation, he departed suddenly and it was several weeks before I saw him again," says Brinkley, the storekeeper.

So far as anyone here knows, that is the only time the recluse has ever mentioned any incident in his past. He appears to be an expert naturalist, and will talk for hours about trees and birds, but only of those in this section. Brown is violently opposed to photographers, and the only pictures ever made of him have been taken while he was caught off guard and with the cameraman running the risk of having a chunk of wood or some other object hurled at his head.

"Brown, as he chooses to call himself, may be a titled European who fell into disgrace, he may be a man disappointed in love, or a number of other things, but I will never believe him a fugitive from justice," declares Brinkley, his closest friend. "Apparently, he is a man who wants to be let alone to live his life as he sees fit, and I hardly believe anyone here will ever interfere with him, for they haven't during a quarter of a century. He is getting along in years now, but is robust from his outdoor existence. He may live many more years, but my guess is that he will take his life's secret to his grave."

Sea Is Engulfing "Island of Dead"

Athens. — The Island of Pontikronik, famed in classic story as the home of Neptune and better known by its more romantic title, "Island of the Dead," is in danger of sinking into the sea.

A commission of engineers who recently studied the island off the Grecian coast reports that, unless a number of breakwaters are constructed, the waves that have undermined the cliffs will soon finish their work.

To save the island a fund has been started by the Archbishop of Corfu. Sir Basil Zaharoff, the armaments millionaire who lives in Paris, has guaranteed half the sum required if the Greek government will raise the rest.

Pontikronik gained its name, "Island of the Dead," from a painting by Bocklins. The painting shows Charon ferrying one of his ghostly passengers to its forbidding cliffs.

U. S. Creates Medical Board for Air Pilots

Washington. — Occupational diseases and peculiar physical requirements of aviation have compelled the War department to develop a special aviation medicine division of the medical corps to keep army pilots in proper condition.

Among the occupational disabilities developed by constant flying are staleness, impaired hearing and a condition caused by constant high altitudes in which the body gradually becomes deficient in oxygen.

A school of aviation medicine has been established at Brooks field, San Antonio, Texas, through which 60 flight surgeons already have passed. These medical officers attached to flying units must be air-minded. They are required to fly constantly and several are qualified pilots. By regular contact with flyers' disabilities they become able to diagnose symptoms of conditions which would not be cause for alarm except to airmen.

The importance of physical fitness lies in the fact that the human element alone has resisted efforts to make flying safer. War department statistics show that 59 per cent of commercial flying accidents, 63 per cent of army accidents, and 74 per cent of navy flying accidents are due to pilot failures rather than mechanical defects.

Lender's Son Receives Book Borrowed in '89

Richmond, Va.—In June, 1889, Rev. Rufus Pegg of Burlington, N. C., borrowed a book from Mr. and Mrs. William M. Cates of Gibsonville, in that state.

Recently C. E. Cates of Burlington, a son, got the book back. It seems that Rev. Mr. Pegg a circuit rider, forgot the loan. At any rate, it reposed in his library for years, and after his recent death a relative discovered the book had Mrs Cates' name in it. He returned the book, expressing regret that it had been kept so long.

Chinaman Is Survived by 109 Descendants

Ching came to Honolulu from Canton 57 years ago.

FRANCE PLACES HERRICK ON PAR WITH FRANKLIN

American Ambassador's Life Work Wins Highest Praise of Parisians.

Paris.—Four spontaneous movements among French and Americans to honor the memory of the late Ambassador Myron T. Herrick of Cleveland will make the Ohioan diplomat rank with Benjamin Franklin as the most honored diplomat the United States has ever sent to France.

The first honor was the decision of the city of Paris to name one of its most beautiful avenues Myron Herrick, the only American ambassador or minister, with the exception of Franklin, who has been so honored. There are streets for Presidents Wilson, Washington and Lincoln.

Start Monument Fund.

The American and French admirers of Ambassador Herrick have started a fund for the erection of a statue near or at the beginning of the new Avenue Myron Herrick. Again Benjamin Franklin is the only other American diplomat who has a statue in Paris.

Ambassador Herrick's friends in Cleveland subscribed $40,000 for the equipment of a Herrick hall in the beautiful new American Legion building, which is only a stone's throw from the embassy where Herrick died.

Herrick's untiring work in founding and improving the American hospital in Paris commemorated by a Herrick ward, which, although it was intended to honor the memory of Mrs Herrick, who worked herself to death nursing soldiers in the hospital during the war, is also a monument to the generosity of the ambassador.

Without a doubt Benjamin Franklin and Myron T Herrick were the most beloved American ambassadors who ever served in France.

Doctor, 93, Prescribes Rules of Longevity

Paris.—A new prophet of longevity has arisen in the person of Professor Gueniet, who at ninety-eight is still studying medicine and is looking for a country home in which to pass his declining years. He has not a wrinkle on his face, possesses clear eyesight and good hearing. His prescription to enable one to live to one hundred years or longer is:

Don't eat too much. Eat only what is good for you. Breathe deeply because oxygen regenerates the blood. Take sufficient physical exercise to ensure this. Be chaste after middle age. Live in the country if possible.

Gueniet himself eats eggs and butter every meal, with a little meat, vegetables, wine and fresh fruit.

ONLY A DOCTOR KNOWS WHAT A LAXATIVE SHOULD BE

Danger lies in careless selection of laxatives! By taking the first thing that comes to mind when bad breath, headaches, dizziness, nausea, biliousness, gas on stomach and bowels, lack of appetite or energy warns of constipation, you risk forming the laxative habit.

Depend on a doctor's judgment in choosing your laxative. Here's one made from the prescription of a specialist in bowel and stomach disorders. Its originator tried it in thousands of cases; found it safe for women, children and old folks; thoroughly effective for the most robust man. Today, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is the world's most popular laxative. It is composed of fresh herbs and other pure ingredients. You can get it, in generous bottles and ready for use, at any drugstore.

Valuable Orchid Pod

Probably the most valuable flower seed pod in the world was on display at the Chelsea flower show in London in 1929. A single flower from one of the seeds sold for more than $1,500, and others sold for $1,000. It is estimated that the entire pod with seed is worth $150,000. The pod is the fertilizer of a rare orchid, the miltonia armstrongii.—Rocky Mountain News.

Bird Made Much Trouble

After a night's rest under the eaves of a house in Keene, N. H., last winter, a sparrow became so strongely attached to the residence that it was necessary to call the fire department to evict it. Violent flutterings of his wings and a barrage of bird language attracted neighbors, for its tail was frozen to the woodwork. The fire department sent a ladder to the scene and freed the bird with the loss of a few tail feathers.

Bride Tells Her Secret

"FOR a young bride of twenty-one to lose her vitality and pep is disastrous, almost a sacrilege," says Mrs. George E. Pillow, of Franklin, Va. "That, however," she continues, "is just what I did."

"I had only been married a few months to an athletic husband, who went everywhere and did everything. I tried to keep up with his pace, and simply collapsed under the strain. I never was really ill; just sallow-skinned, depressed, and lifeless. Swimming, dancing, golf, I just couldn't face them. When I began to lose my clear complexion, I was desperate.

"Then one day a girl friend came to pay me a visit. In the bottom of her little bag of clothes lay a crystal-clear bottle—Nujol! A short woman-to-woman talk—a telephone call to a neighboring drug store—and my future happiness was settled.

"That was a year ago. Now I too am never without Nujol, which has brightened and cleansed my body like a cake of pure soap. I eat, sleep, swim, and hike with the enthusiasm of a child. My complexion is all it used to be—and best of all—I am my husband's little pal again."

The wonderful thing about crystal-clear Nujol is that it is not a medicine; it contains no drugs—it cannot hurt even a baby. It is simply the normal internal lubrication which

GROUND FOR ENCOURAGEMENT

The first detailed report of the national business survey conference appointed last fall by President Hoover is encouraging to everybody except chronic pessimists and those ho for personal or political reasons would like to make conditions appear worse than they are.

In many lines of industry, Chairman Barnes reports, conditions are actually better than they were a few years ago. In the few where they are not so good, the difference between this period of 1930 and the corresponding period of 1929 is very small, and is diminishing.

Credit is getting easier everywhere A third more long-term bonds have been marketed this winter than last year. Bank rates are steadily declining. Savings bank deposits are increasing in the east. Life insurance companies wrote three percent more business in February than one year earlier, thus justifying the estimate of increased investment reserves in their hands. Building and loan associations report increas-deposits. More farm loans are being made, but there is a marked falling off in foreclosures and delinquencies. Instalment sales are up to last year's and payed deposits. Farm loans are being made but there ments are being kept up. Public utilities have begun a program of new construction which will run about $400,000,000 more than 1929 Construction work, except in residential building, is much ahead of last year. Road building contracts let in January and February are 82 percent over 1929. New contracts in the second week in March were the highest in eight weeks, and are expected to increase as mortgage money becomes more freely available. Railroads have orders out for rails, more locomotives and almost as many new cars as last year, and railroad payrolls for February were higher than in February of 1929. The commitments of the railroads call for spending $140,000,000 more in the first six months of this year than in the first half of last year. Electric railways are spending $44,000,000 more for the year. Shipyards are active, employing 28 percent more men in February than in February a year ago and ten percent more than in November.

Telephone expenditures for the year will run $66,-000,000 above 1929. More radio sets were sold since New Year's than a year ago. Electric light and power companies are carrying out their promise to spend $65,000,000 more this year than last. Iron and steel output is increasing. Automobile production is proceeding at rate to build 4,600,000 cars this year, with payrolls in the industry for February 25 percent higher than January and 28 percent above December. Farm implements business is about five percent off. Textiles are from four to 17 percent below normal for the season. Book and job printing was two percent greater than last year and newspaper production three percent higher in February.

Those are not generalizations or guesses. They are specific facts. They are something to show to the grumbler who declares that things are getting worse instead of better. As a matter of cold fact, this country has never before experienced so wide-spread a depression from which recovery began so quickly. It started in the east, and recovery is coming first in the east, but re-establishment of the high level of industrial and commercial activity and general prosperity which we were enjoying a year ago is bound to overtake the wave of depression everywhere before the summer is over, unless all signs fail.

WILL IT HELP THE FARMERS

The United States senate has at last agreed upon a tariff bill. It has yet to be accepted by the house of representatives, and there may be a long battle in the conference committee of the two houses. But the outlook is that the tariff question will be settled, for a few years to come, within a few weeks.

That in itself is good news There is no question that the delay in fixing tariff rates has held many manufacturers back from proceeding to "business as usual." So long as nobody knew how far any particular industry might be exposed to foreign competition, capital has naturally been timid about investing in it.

The evident purpose of the senate in raising rates generally to the highest levels in history is to keep the American market for American industry and agriculture. How far it will succeed in doing this is another question, which only time can answer. And how far it will prove a boon to the farmer to have foreign competition eliminated is a question which all the argument in the world will not answer.

The large farmers growing staple crops probably will get better prices for their products, on the average. Whether those increased receipts will be eaten up by higher prices they must pay for what they buy with their incomes remains to be seen. That it will make very much difference one way or the other to the general run of small farmers is much to be doubted.

have met and studied questions of municipal interest and the economic and social problems of the people as a whole. The affairs of San Francisco have naturally kept me in contact with the affairs and problems of our state government. No community lives apart and independent of its neighbor. We are all kin. All the cities and towns of this state are typically Californian. During these years I have visited almost every place within the state. No county in this state is strange to me. I know all California and all California knows me.

I can bring to the problems of this state a long experience and an open public record of faithful and efficient service.

If elected, I will be governor of all the people of California. There are no territorial boundaries within the state. I will practice sound and economic business principles. I will urge a practical and equitable tax plan—a human solution of our crime problems—and a permanent program for conserving our natural resources, especially water. I will vizualize and provide for the future development of our state in every direction.

The governor of the state of California has to face many human problems. If elected, I will bring to that office all the human sympathy, all the understanding I possess.

In entering into this campaign, I am beholden to no man or clique. Free from political bossism; free from pre-election promises, and, if elected, I will serve the length and breadth of my native state, and to that service I will dedicate myself.

Upon the many important questions which now confront the state of California, I shall shortly declare my platform in plain language—a platform for a governor of all the people of this great state—a governor responsible to them alone—a governor committed to serve their best interests, fearlessly, steadily, independently.

The primary law is of such a character that the candidate must meet, as far as possible, the voters of the state, placing a heavy responsibility which he cannot accomplish without the assistance of friends. I appeal to the voluntary activity of my friends in all the counties of the state to help me in my candidacy. Because of the far-reaching demands of the primary law, I intend to pay a visit to the people of every county seat in the state during the campaign, and as many towns, villages and hamlets as I can reach.

In this campaign I propose to go directly to you, the people of the state of California, confident of your good will and support.

Respectfully,
JAMES ROLPH, JR.

LOCAL GRANGE TO HONOR CHARTER MEMBERS TONITE

The regular meeting of the Orchard City Grange will be held this (Tuesday) evening in the Odd Fellows hall with S. N. Hedegard, worthy master, presiding over the business session. During the business meeting reports of the standing committees will be given.

The lecture hour will be devoted to a program in honor of the 13 past masters of the lodge who are all active members of the Grange at the present time. They are Frank Mitchell, Joseph Bohnett, Dr. E. C. Abbott, H. V. Archibald, A. C. Keesling, H. G. Keesling, W. R. Coupland, L. Shelley, J. E. Wiesendanger, Robert Scholz, E. K. Clendenning, Stanley Smith and Harry Barnes.

The 19 charter members of the organization will also be honored at the meeting and the twenty - seventh anniversary will be celebrated. Refreshments will be served after the ceremonies.

Mrs. J. C. Ainsley entertained at a bridge luncheon today in honor of Mrs. E. T. Kruger and Mrs. A. L. Porter of Saratoga, who are leaving soon for Hawaii.

Mrs. Ernest Seagraves of San Francisco spent the week-end with her mother, Mrs. A. W. Page.

Mrs. Frank Mendel and children of Palo Alto were recent visitors with Mrs. G. R. Newcomb.

GUNMAN'S BLUFF

BY Edgar Wallace

COPYRIGHT BY EDGAR WALLACE

TWELFTH INSTALMENT

"But—" she began.

"I believe he's in Spain. If a man's in Spain he can't be in London, can he? And if he's a gentleman at large in Spain, taking long hikes through the country, he can't be burgling Taffany's or getting himself mixed up with Connor.

"Now, Mrs. Maddison, I'm going to ask you that impertinent question all over again: exactly why did your husband leave you? No, no, I don't mean that. I know why he left you. But why did you suddenly leave him flat? I don't know that; I'll bet your husband doesn't know that. Only you know—and Danty. I guess Danty knows."

She was silent but she realized at that moment just why she had not destroyed Rex's last note. She had kept it to show Luke some day, and demand from him the explanation she should have asked for when it came to her. It was her justification—the only one she could have for her conduct.

"That is an extraordinary request for a stranger to make, Mr. Haynes, and I don't know whether to enlighten you or not."

She stood for a moment silent, and then, turning abruptly, walked out of the room. Haynes picked up his hat from the floor and rose, thinking the interview was at an end. But in three minutes she was back again with a little envelope in her hand.

"I'm telling you something that nobody knows but me and Mr. Morrell," she said. "When my poor brother shot himself, this note was found in his room."

She took from the envelope two telephone slips and passed them to him. Gunner Haynes read:

"Margaret darling. I have lost. For months I have been gambling. Today I took a desperate step on the advice of Luke Maddison. He has led me to ruin—money is his god. I beg of you not to trust him. He has led me from one act of folly to another. God bless you.

Rex."

He read it twice and then looked up.

"Is this your brother's handwriting?"

She nodded.

"Could you swear to it?"

"Yes, I'm sure it's his. I've had hundreds of penciled notes from him, and I couldn't possibly be mistaken."

"Who found it?"

"Mr. Morell found it in Rex's room. Poor Rex had a servant, a very trustworthy man, and he saw the note before Mr. Morell put it in his pocket—"

"He didn't read it, of course?" suggested the Gunner. "The servant, I mean?"

"I don't think so. He only saw the note, and Mr. Morell hide it."

The Gunner had an amazing memory. He could from that moment have repeated every word in the letter—there was no need for him to take a copy and he handed it back to the girl.

• • • •

No man wasted less time or effort than Gunner Hayens. His method represented the very economy of labor. He was satisfied that Connor had carried away his victim, but was wrong when he associated Danty Morell with the abduction.

He called upon Connor but was told vaguely that the man had gone into the country. He did not attempt to seek an interview with Danty Morell, but after a day spent in vain search of Connor's wharf, made his way to Half Moon street, watched the house until he saw first Danty and then Pi Coles leave. To get into Danty's flat was a very simple matter—a key blank, a piece of lampblack, a quarter of an hour spent in Green Park filing the soft metal, procured him an entrance.

Once inside the flat he proceeded at his leizure. He was not at all anxious at the thought of Danty's return. His hatred of Morell was in one sense illogical. They had been friends and partners, though he had lost sight of the man and the partnership had broken off. He had no direct proof of the duplicity he suspected. Gunner Haynes had loved that feather-headed little wife of his and when she had disappeared, never to become more to him than a record in a workhouse register, a tremendous part of his life had been cut away from him. He might suspect Danty as the cause of his agony; he had no clear evidence that the story the man had told was untrue.

Danty had said the girl had disappeared, and that he was as ignorant of her whereabouts as her husband. Yet, for all this, the suspicion in Gunner Haynes' mind amounted to a certainty. He was a just man, and so long as that proof was missing, Danty Morell would come to no harm.

He made a quick but thorough examination of the two rooms. There were letters which had to be scanned, pocketbooks to investigate, drawers to be opened and searched, but in none of these did Haynes find the slightest clue to Luke-Maddison's present place of imprisonment. He did find the note which Connor had scribbled, giving the address where Luke was staying, but no more. There remained only the safe, which was not so much a safe with a spring lock—the type as a steel cupboard fastened with a spring lock—the type that is found in most business offices. To open this was a matter of five minutes' patient work.

There were four shelves and each was crowded with letters, bills and curious souvenirs which Danty had collected—the cupboard was in such disorder as only a man without method could create. On the third shelf he found a wooden box, the lock of which he forced. There were papers here—bundles of letters tied up with shoe laces, bits of old string—there was nothing romantic in Danty's dispositions.

The first bundle did not interest him. At the sight of the writing on the second his face went gray. He brought the box into the dining room and sat down, read three of the letters, glanced at the others, and very slowly and deliberately tied them up again and put them back in the box. As he did so he caught sight of a scrap of paper exactly the size of that on which Rex had written his last message. He took it out—yes, it was scrawled in the same handwriting. But the message was unintelligible. It ran:

"—Danty Morell. The man is a common swindler. I was warned against him by—"

And then in a flash he realized. He had an extraordinary memory and could repeat almost word for word the supposedly complete message Rex had left. With these words added it would have read:

"Margaret darling, I have lost. For months I have been gambling. Today I took a desperate step on the advice of Danty Morell. The man is a common swindler. I was warned against him by Luke Maddison. He has led me to ruin—money is his god. I beg of you not to trust him. He has led me from one act of folly to another . . ."

That was it. Danty had found that the first and last of those scraps made a complete message; he had put the second in his pocket (it still bore marks of being screwed up.

• • • •

It came as something of a shock to Margaret Maddison to discover how completely changed were her feelings toward the man with whom she had passed through stages of toleration to liking, and from liking to a sort of passive affection, and from that again, in the cataclysmic revolution of feeling that her brother's death had brought about, to the bitterest loathing.

For the first time in her life Margaret was in love, and in love with something which was neither a memory nor an idea, but something which was to her as real as her own hand. She had gained that sense of possession which is the wife's own sense—an understanding of her own obligations. She could not afford to waste time in regrets at the amazing follies and wicked errors of the past; in the days that followed her mind was occupied with schemes for helping him out of the morass in which he struggled.

She did not hear from Gunner Haynes, although she stayed up until nearly two o'clock the next morning, having the telephone switched through to her bedside. Nor did the next day bring news. She was out when Danty called, and having no occasion to go to her checkbook, she did not discover his theft.

After she discovered it, she called on him.

Danton heard her voice and was coming across the hall to meet her before the door was closed.

"This is an unexpected pleasure, Margaret," he said. "Is anything wrong?"

She did not answer until she was in his room.

"Before I tell you why I've come," she said, "I think it is only fair that you should know I have left instructions that unless I am back in my house in three-quarters of an hour my butler will ring up Mr. Bird and tell him where I have gone.

He frowned at this.

"What's the idea?" he asked harshly. That's an extraordinary way to behave—why the dickens shouldn't you be back in three-quarters of an hour?"

"Where are the remainder of those checks you stole from my check book when you called the other day?"

She saw his face go red.

"I don't know what you mean," he said loudly. "I steal checks? What nonsense you're talking—"

"You came into my house and you were in my sitting room long enough to extract ten checks. One of them was brought to the bank today, made out in Luke's name and signed by him. On my instructions the check was not honored."

"Not honered?" he stammered, and in his embarrassment he betrayed his share of the guilt."

"I'm less interested in the check than in my husband," she said quietly. "Where is he?"

He strove vainly to recover his self-possession and forced a smile.

"Really, my dear girl—" he began.

"You'll address me as Mrs. Maddison, if you have to address me as anything," she said. "I want you to return those checks; I want you also to tell me exactly where Luke is."

"As far as I know, he's staying with a convicted thief named Haynes," the man answered roughly, and to his surprise she nodded.

"I thought so too. I went down to see him—but he had gone. I think Mr. Haynes was surprised to find that he had gone, and I'm only now understanding that Luke did not go of his own free will. Then I thought he may have wandered out by himself in order to escape association with Mr. Haynes. But the check explains a great deal. Where is Luke?"

He shook his head.

"I don't know."

"In that case I am going to do what I was trying to avoid," she said. "I am going to the police, and I shall charge you with stealing the blank checks, and leave it to Mr. Bird to connect you with Luke's disappearance."

She half turned to the door, but he caught her by the arm.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Activity in Business and Industry Heralds Returning Prosperity.

RETURNING prosperity is heralded in hopeful signs seen in various lines of business and industry in the United States. Reduction in rediscount rates by Federal Reserve banks and cheaper call money have given great vitality to the stock market. Money is cheaper today than it has been in five years. In New York the official call rate dropped to 2 per cent while some loans were made outside at 1½ per cent.

The United States employment service in Washington reports that business and industry are consolidating the progress made in January for an expected upturn in employment during the spring months. The automobile industry has made a sharp upward swing in production, registering the largest output of passenger cars and trucks since October. Other industries, such as electric equipment, airplane, silk and rayon show increasing activity with a full complement of workers.

The gigantic building programs projected throughout the country, together with great betterment programs by public utility companies, will furnish employment to an army of workers, the report states.

WORLDWIDE demonstrations have been featuring the struggle between established religion and the atheistic commission of Russia. Bishop William T. Manning of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of New York recently participated with other clergymen in a prayerful protest against Russia's anti-religious policy at services held at the cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York.

Pope Pius, before a congregation of 50,000 in St. Peter's in Rome, led Catholics of the world in intercessory services against religious persecution in Soviet Russia. In Chicago, New York, London and many other cities, Catholics participated in similar services.

Anti-religious demonstrations continue in various parts of Russia and plans have been completed by the Society of Militant Atheists for the opening of an "anti-God congress."

Germany and Czechoslovakia report attacks by Communists on churches in some parts of those countries.

HOPE that a way has been found to break the Franco-Italian deadlock over naval parity, which threatened the very life of the five-power naval conference in London, was seen in remarks made by Aristide Briand, French foreign minister, after a private talk with Premier MacDonald. M. Briand said:

"Always when things seem at their worst one finds a way out. This is true now. We have been talking about means to bring the conference to a successful conclusion and we are going to apply those means as quickly as possible."

In refusing to discuss details, the French leader continued:

"I am in the habit of chattering too much, and then I am reproached for it afterwards. We have been taking our bearings and experts have been making the observations precise."

The smile on Premier MacDonald's face as he left M. Briand gave further assurance that the situation had taken a new turn and that optimistic events were in the air.

However, the optimism is not shared by the other powers and a suggestion to adjourn the conference until June, to meet at Geneva concurrently with the League of Nations preparatory disarmament commission has been offered.

OUT of the tense situation that confronts grain producers of the country comes an important announcement from the Farmers' National Grain corporation, the grain co-operative of the federal farm board. In making public the result of their survey on congested grain storage facilities in the United States, they announced their intention of purchasing and building additional elevators throughout the grain producing area, by means of loans to co-operative associations.

"In less than three months the movement of the new wheat crop will begin in the Southwest," said the corporation's officers. "There is great need for facilities in that area. Some new construction is required and some of the existing houses need enlarging. Some houses now owned by others must be acquired by co-operatives. Some subterminal warehouses should be built."

The harvest is farther away in the spring wheat area, the report said, but the problem is "in some respects similar, and hardly less pressing."

GREAT BRITAIN is mourning the passing of one of its most eminent public men. The death of Earl Balfour removes from the scene one of the great Victorian statesmen. He was the last surviving minister of Queen Victoria but so keen was his intellect and so persistent his youth that until his final retirement a year ago he was regarded in Great Britain as a modern statesman.

The end came peacefully to the statesman, who was in his eighty second year. He had been distressingly ill for a long time with laryngitis.

From the time he entered parliament in 1874 until the closing years of his life he figured as an important factor in British politics. He succeeded his uncle, Lord Salisbury, as leader of the Conservative party, and served as premier from 1902 to 1905.

CENSORSHIP by federal courts over imported obscene, immoral or treasonable literature was almost unanimously adopted by the senate, and included in the tariff bill, after two days of spirited discussion, in which charges of intolerance, denunciations of the principle of censorship and pleas for the protection of the morals of young America rang through the senate chamber. The amendment to the tariff bill, as adopted, provides that questionable literature may be seized at the port of entry, but cannot be destroyed until it has been judged in a federal court and adverse decisions appealed.

PRIMO DE RIVERA rests in a soldier's grave, honored by the highest tribute a nation can bestow. The body of the man who ruled Spain as dictator for six years and then went into exile, was placed beside the body of his wife in San Isidro cemetery in Madrid.

Premier Berenguer and foremost dignitaries of the country, including King Alfonso, participated in the funeral.

The man, who in 1923 seized, and for six years held in his soldier's hand, the destinies of 20,000,000 Spaniards and the ancient dynasty, came to his end suddenly and alone in a hotel room in Paris, a virtual exile. He had lived there quietly for the month that elapsed since he took the hint from his successor that his presence in Spain might be dangerous and would complicate the task of a transition government and crossed the frontier into France. De Rivera was in his sixty-first year.

INCOME tax receipts from the March 15 collections as shown by the treasury totaled $314,200,558, exceeding by more than $40,000,000 collections for the same date last year. This sum was the total for the month of March as shown in the treasury statement for March 18.

FOR a second time the senate has defeated proposals to impose duties on crude oil and its products. The senate has also defeated all proposals for protection for hides, leather and shoes and those commodities will remain on the free list.

PRESIDENT HOOVER has announced his purpose of completing the housecleaning which he commenced a year ago in the southern patronage situation. Commenting on the recent report of a senate committee, Mr. Hoover pointed out that the incidents dealt with were not recent and that all federal officials known to have engaged in improper practices had either resigned or been removed.

"Under instructions to the various departments of the government," said the President, "a system has been established by which these reprehensible practices have been absolutely stopped and the system of purchase and sale of appointments, so far as it existed, has been ended."

ALTHOUGH two and a half billion dollars will be spent for streets and highways throughout the country in 1930, the economic loss from congestion and accidents due to inadequate planning in metropolitan areas will equal this amount, President Charles M. Hayes of the Chicago Motor club declared at a meeting of traffic experts of the American Automobile association in Washington.

PRESIDENT ORITZ RUBIO, in the course of an informal interview with the press in Mexico City, announced that President Hoover had accepted his personal invitation to visit Mexico City during his Presidency. President Rubio did not reveal the date of the proposed visit. He is anxious for the American President to return his visit to the United States last year.

The Mexican chief also announced that the government had invited a committee of international bankers, the chief holders of Mexico's foreign debt, to meet with representatives of the Mexican government in Mexico or New York to attempt to reach a more definite understanding on the debt question, with a view to making a settlement which the Mexican government could and would live up to. An agreement, he said, would encourage the owners of factories and business to extend their activities, giving work to thousands of unemployed.

BANDIT hordes in Kiangsi province of China have massacred more than 2,000 men, women and children in the Fuan district. Reports reaching Shanghai said the wholesale slayings were committed early this month under the direction of the bandit chieftain General Chuteh. He is reported still occupying the district. Fearing further massacres, American, British and Japanese gunboats are patrolling the Yangtse river.

SECRETARY WILBUR has appealed to all evangelistical bodies in the United States to join in the drive to eliminate illiteracy.

The "shocking facts" of illiteracy are being called to the attention of the church organizations now, he said, in order that plans can be made at the annual meetings this spring for active participation in the campaign sponsored by the government.

Mr. Wilbur said that the 1920 census reported 4,931,905 persons ten years of age or over unable to write in any language.

OWING to extensive activities of Communists in the Philippines, Gen. C. E. Nathorst, chief of the constabulary, has made a request to Governor General Davis that proletarian congresses be denied the use of the mails throughout the islands.

The boycott of American goods, spread of Communistic doctrines among the ignorant masses of the island and the active participation of Communists in the recent school strike at Manila were among the activities which caused the request to be made.

PROHIBITION has become a dominating issue in the nation within the last few months, according to a survey made by the United Press.

Recent developments show that about 100 bills have been introduced on the subject in congress; 12 states having prohibition legislation either introduced, or about to be introduced; 11 recent polls have been taken inquiring prohibition sentiment and some still are under way; hearings have been started on several national measures; both wet and dry forces are tightening their lines for concerted drives either toward legislation or toward election of congressmen or state officials this fall.

A TWENTY-FOUR hour strike was declared in Cuba as a protest against unemployment. The affair passed off without serious disturbance. The police charged that the strike was in compliance with orders from the Third Internationale in Moscow. It was estimated that 200,000 workmen walked out. Public utility plants and railroads were about the only industries not affected.

Beggars are reported to have a union in China. But it occurs to us that they must have some difficulty in organizing anything in the nature of an effective strike.—Lowell Evening Leader.

OUR SEVEN LEAGUE BOOTS

The daily magic in the conquest of space and time has given us new ears, new feet—shortcuts over distance and time. Our present-day systems of transportation and communication have out-stepped the legendary "Seven League Boots."

Our standard of living is largely based on these modern conveniences of transportation and communication. The airplane, railroad, interurban, street car, bus, automobile and truck; the radio, telegraph, telephone, postal service and printing press are among the modern marvels which have speeded up our life, cut down space and distance, and brought the whole world to our door.

The most successful and prosperous people are those who insist on having these modern conveniences available for their use—and who make the fullest use of them for effective living.

Have you ever stopped to think:

That there is now an average of one automobile to every home in the United States.

That at least every other home has a telephone.

That statistics say that radios are in almost as common usage as the telephone.

Every form of convenience in modern communication and transportation is within our reach—is ready and waiting for us to make efficient use of.

And by putting these modern marvels to the proper use of serving us and each other, we are forging ahead as a community and as a living center.

One of the greatest differences between people and communities is the use they make of these modern conveniences of transportation and communication.

Let's put our modern "Seven League Boots" to the best possible use in our competition with other towns and cities for superiority for

Pageant

"The Madonna of Monterey" is the title of an historic pageant written by Mrs. Fremont Older, wife of the well-known San Francisco editor, for the festival this year. The play will be given on the nights of May 16 and 17.

It has to do with the pecadillos of Governor Pedro Fages and his puritanical wife who is finally driven to divorce. Senora Fages, who is a new arrival in California, is shocked at the nudeness of the natives and gives them her clothes when her husband refuses to pass an appropriation to dress the savages.

Campbell Union High School Notes

Lola Rhoten, who recently left Campbell high to go to the San Jose school has returned and is again attending Campbell high with her numerous friends who are happy to welcome her back.

The High P. T. A. met in the high school annex last Wednesday evening, where an evening dinner was served. Mr. Ayer of the Los Gatos high school spoke on Mental Differences, pointing out that all children should not be expected to do classical or university work, and that the world has need for good workers in many different lines other than "white collar jobs."

—CUHS—

The committees for the mother and daughter tea that is being given by the Girls' league of the high school April 11 are as follows: Entertainment, Miss Ruby Howes, advisor; Irene Escover, chairman; Frances Reid, Veva Nichols, Virginia Tressler. Refreshments, Miss Lois Gardner, advisor; Kathryn Eitzert, chairman; Helen Buck, Sylvia Rest and Helen and Dorothy Reed. Decoration, Mrs. Jessie Clark, advisor; Cora Blakesley, chairman; Bernice Murty, Dorothy Vincent, Mildred Cook, Alberta Lantz, Ethel Kirk. Invitations, Mrs. Anna C. Dart, advisor; Ann Scourcur, chairman; Antionette Simeone, Gladys Torry, Muriel Wilson.

The P. T. A. has promised to give a party or a picnic to the class having the largest number of parents present at the last meeting and the final one to come. At the last meeting the seniors came out ahead, but all four classes are anxious to win the prize awaiting them in June.

—CUHS—

The Boys' Athletic club held their annual jinx at the annex last Friday evening. Included in the program were several musical numbers, stunts by various members of the groups, boxing and wrestling. Robert Pryor was responsible for the success of the party. Refreshments were served at the close of festivities.

—CUHS—

The public speaking class presented a one-act tragedy entitled "Submerged" this morning during the assembly period. The players were Joe Mantusa, Frank Bohman, Eugene Williams, Robert Pryor, Mack Ross and George Stubbe.

The stage setting, lighting effects, etc., were all taken care of by boys of the class. To Kenneth Beer, director, goes all the credit for the play as he had charge of the entire thing.

—CUHS—

The students of the junior class feel they would like to pay a last tribute to their beloved schoolmate, Harold Dencker, and some have expressed their deep emotion in words. A few, selected at random, follow the publication of the last composition handed in by the lad who passed away a short time ago:

There is a dog about our neighborhood who seems to make it a practice to come to our house every morning, find the paper, and then proceed to chew it into small particles. He is usually first seen when half of the paper is already in tatters. As soon as discovered, he is promptly chased away. Retreating for a few yards, he then turns about to look at his antagonist and bark. When he becomes quiet he gazes at one with a sad, mournful expression which makes one almost forget himself and out of pure sympathy long to return the paper to its destroyer; but realizing that the dog would not appreciate this act of generosity, one reluctantly frightens him away again. This time the dog runs until he is out of sight, but only to return the next morning to repeat his depredations.

—Harold Dencker.

HAROLD

He was always cheerful, in spite of his sufferings and an all around good sport. He was loved by many, and although he is not here in body he still lives in the hearts of his friends.

We see the empty chair in our classroom and as we look at it, there comes over the room a saddened atmosphere.

When the teacher mentions the name of Harold, the little classroom noises are stilled and respect in which he was held by all of us is apparent in the attention accorded her remarks.

We miss the compositions that showed his artistic nature. We miss his quiet cheerfulness, his ready wit and his gentlemanly poise. As day after day goes by, we do not forget Harold, and although he does not attend school with us in person, he does attend in our memories.

—George Stubbe, '30.

IN MEMORIUM

An empty chair that once was filled,
A mellow voice forever stilled;
A comradship that fate has willed
To live in memory.
His love of art has served him well,
His friendliness has wrought a spell;
And in our hearts he'll ever dwell
To live in memory.

—Viola Blyther.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Smith of Whiting, Ind., are visiting with Joseph Bohnett.

Took Soda For Stomach For 20 Years

"For 20 years I took soda for indigestion and stomach gas. Then I tried Adlerika. One bottle brought complete relief." Jno. B. Hardy.

Adlerika relieves gas and sour stomach in TEN minutes! Acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels, removing poisons you never knew were there. Don't fool with medicine which cleans only PART of the bowels, but let Adlerika give stomach and bowels a REAL cleaning and see how good you feel! —Shadle's Drug Store.

Mrs. A. B. Townsend and daughter Ruth have returned from a visit with their son and brother, Irving, in Los Angeles.

Clarence Wolff, who has been spending a short vacation at Palm Springs with his family, returned last week. He says that the desert is now at its best, spring flowers being inbloom everywhere.

Why not plan an all-electric kitchen?

The electric range cooks automatically

A beautiful electric range harmonizes with any decorative idea you have for your kitchen. The cleanliness of the electric range keeps your kitchen immaculate.

And how the electric range improves cooking! Delicious food cooks automatically without you "watching" in the kitchen.

The new electric range is speedy. Improved cooking elements make electric cooking as fast as gas cooking.

Why not come in and see the beautiful, new porcelain enameled electric ranges at our office?

All the hot water you want—at a turn of the faucet

What could be finer than an all-electric kitchen?—with its modern electric range and an automatic electric water heater.

The electric water heater keeps an abundant supply of hot water ready for instant use, day and night.

An electric water heater, when used with an electric range, heats water for one-third to one-half of a cent per gallon! So little to pay for this modern comfort. And a clean kitchen.

Why not also see the electric water heaters at our office? There are many models to choose from.
